N. B. The whole Work will make about ten Numbers, containing fifteen Sheets each Number, beautifully printed in 4to, Price 3 s. to be continued Monthly, and will be compleated by Christmas next.

THE reader cannot have a juster or fuller idea of this celebrated history, than what is given by M. le Clerc of Holland, to whom the learned world is so much oblig'd, for the accurate accounts he has publish'd in his numerous Bibliotheques of all the most valuable books that have appear'd in the Republic of Literature.

HE gives a particular account of this history of the Council of Constance, in the second article of his Bibliotheque Choisie, Vol. XXVII. from whence we have taken the following abstract.

" THIS is an ecclesiastical history, which treats entirely of " matters relating to doctrine and " discipline, and faithfully repre- " sents the conduct of the coun- " cil of Constance in general, and " the particular sentiments of " those who assisted at it. The " author, who had his principal " memoirs from the members of " that council, has so strictly ob- " serv'd the laws of history, with " regard to sincerity and impar- " tiality, that very few histories " of the kind can in that respect " equal it.

" HE represents the sentiments " of the doctors who were in this " council, and of those who trea- " ted of it soon after, in the " same manner as they express " 'em themselves; and as to facts, " his vouchers are the publick " acts, and the authors who wrote " in that time, whom he exa- " mines with great care, and com- " pares with one another, in or- " der to discover the truth, or " at least what comes nearest to " it. All manner of readers, not

" excepting the Roman catho-
" licks, may read this hiſtory
" with pleaſure, and without
" fear of being impos'd upon by
" a repreſentation of things dif" ferent from what they were in " reality. The ſtile is clear, eaſy
" and unaffected, and has all the
" beauties that the ſubject wou'd
" admit of.

" OF all the late councils
" there's none, except the coun" cil of Trent, whoſe hiſtory and
" deciſions are of more impor" tance than this of Conſtance.
" Where the author has de-
" ſcended to particulars, and to
" ſuch diſcuſſions of things, as
" ſeem at firſt view of no great
" importance, one may perceive
" in reading this hiſtory, that it
" wou'd not have been compleat
" without it, and that the ſeries
" of the narrative made it abſo-
" lutely neceſſary. The author
" has not confin'd himſelf only
" to the proceedings of the coun" cil, but has alſo taken all the
" care he cou'd to give the lives
" and characters of thoſe mem" bers of the council, eſpecially,
" who made any figure in it.

" M. Lenfant has a fine pre-
" face before his hiſtory, in
" which he juſtly obſerves, that
" this was a very memorable
" council, and that the things
" therein tranſacted were of the
" laſt importance. —— The de-
" poſing of two popes (Gregory
" XII. and Benedict XIII.); the " voluntary or forc'd abdication
" of a third (John XXIII.) the " re-union of all the chriſtian
" ſtates; the preſence and per-
" petual activity of the emperor
" Sigiſmond, for the ſupport and
" ſucceſs of this aſſembly; the
" ſuperiority of general councils
" over popes, which was therein
" eſtabliſh'd; the deciſions upon
" ſuch matters as concern'd all
" chriſtendom; the puniſhment
" of John Huſs and Jerome of
" Prague; the reformation in diſ-
" cipline and morals demanded,
" with incredible inſtances, which
" were back'd by one part of the " council, and always eluded by
" the other; and finally, the ele" ction and coronation of a pope;
" all theſe ſubjects are very pro-
" per to raiſe the attention of
" readers, tho' of ever ſo little
" curioſity, and to inſpire them
" with a juſt impatience to know
" all the particulars, and to pe-
" netrate into the motives and
" ſprings of ſuch great events.
" And I can engage from my own " experience, that ſuch as have
" leiſure to read them through-
" out, will not repent of their
" trouble.

" THIS council was conſide-
" rable, not only for the great
" number of clergymen of all or" ders, who repair'd to it, but alſo

" alſo for the princes, who were " there, beſides the emperor; not " to mention the ambaſſadors of " ſuch as cou'd not go to it, and " a multitude of the nobility. " It was not the only buſineſs of " this, as it was of moſt of the " preceding councils, to determin certain points of doctrine " or diſcipline, to condemn real " or pretended hereticks, and to " reform ſuch abuſes as had only crept into ſome parts of Europe, or among a certain order " of men: This council had " greater work upon their hands, " viz. to reſtore peace to all the " weſt, which was rent by a " ſchiſm of near forty years ſtanding. In a corruption ſo general, as the clergy were in at " that time, it was very difficult " to find out a perſon for St. Peter's chair, that wou'd be acceptable to ſo many nations, " who were divided by ſeparate " intereſts, and taught by experience of what had paſt, to be " more upon their guard whom " to chuſe. Upon this head, the " council was not wanting either " in prudence or vigour, and never did any eccleſiaſtical aſſembly ſignalize its authority, " with regard to popes, by decrees that were more ſevere, " and at the ſame time more " juſt.

" In this hiſtory the reader " will find new light in the affair of John Huſs, and his ſafe " conduct, as well as with regard " to his opinion. Such as had " not throughly examin'd this " matter, imagin'd that John Huſs and his diſciple Jerome " of Prague were the fore-runners of Luther and Calvin, and " that their ſentiments were " much the ſame. But the contrary appears from the account " given by M. Lenfant. They " both believ'd tranſubſtantiation, and that the adoration of " the hoſt was an indiſpenſable " duty; they alſo held the invocation of ſaints, and moſt of " the other tenets, which are " diſputed betwixt the proteſtants and the church of Rome. " They did not ſo much as require the communion in both " kinds; nor did they teach, that " it ſhould be celebrated in that " manner. The council was moſt " offended with them, for the " inclination they ſhew'd to ſhake " of the yoak of eccleſiaſtical authority; not ſo much for its " being a tyranny in it ſelf, " which they maintain'd afterwards, as for the abuſes of that " authority, and the ill-manners " of the clergy. The other opinions which they were charged with holding, in oppoſition " to thoſe of the Romiſh church, " were expreſs'd in ſuch obſcure " ſtrange terms, that it were eaſy to put a conſtruction upon " them in favour of that church " according to her principles and " their own ideas. But it ſeems, " that the council was not inclin'd to hear them, in order " to render them the more guilty and to make an example of " them, for reclaiming the other " Bohemians to their duty, who " refus'd ſubmiſſion to their biſhops. But the beſt way to " form a right judgment of the " whole, is to read M. Lenfant's " hiſtory with attention.

" As for the helps which M " Lenfant had to write it, he " tells us himſelf, that beſides " the annaliſts, collectors of councils, chronologiſts, and the " like authors, whom he has not " neglected, he has chiefly made " uſe of the German hiſtorians, " and the monuments of that " time lately diſcover'd in Germany. But nothing has render'd this hiſtory ſo exact and " compleat, as the great collection of the acts of this council " in ſix volumes in folio, for " which the publick is oblig'd to " the liberality of Rodolph Auguſtus duke of Brunſwic, who " employ'd a very learned man, " that was divinity profeſſor at " Helmſtad, to collect them. And " the author owns in his preface, " what vaſt obligations he had " to this collection. He has alſo conſulted the beſt hiſtories " he cou'd find of the affairs of " Bohemia, Poland, the acts of " the famous aſſembly at Paris, by Gerſon; Recanati's hiſtory of Florence; the acts and " monuments of England, collected by Mr. Rymer; the hiſtory of that country by Rapin Thoyras, and many other authorities, too tedious to mention, " which he has carefully quoted " and mark'd in the margents."

HAVING for five Years past (with some Approbation and Encouragement) carried on my Design of a MONTHLY CATALOGUE of BOOKS, &c. I find my self at last attack'd by a Brother Trader, in my little Interest in that Way; who, in order to establish a Sort of a Monthly Collection of News Paper Intelligence, has thought an Infringement upon me to be the less a Crime, as despairing to succeed in his Design without it: The Apology he makes for himself, is, That he first of all acquainted me with his Intention, which I acknowledge; as likewise, that he invited me into a Share of his Collection, but with this Proviso, that the Monthly CATALOGUE must be suppress'd: I shall leave it to any one to judge, whether by such Compliances, it may not be in the Power of any Person to supplant another in his Designs, by some pretended Project of his own.

I hope what I have observ'd will not be thought improper, intending, by the Favour of my Friends, still to prosecute my Design: And in Order further to oblige them, I have encreas'd my Expence, in altering the Form of Printing, without enhancing the Price, whereby I shall not only be enabled to insert a compleat Account of BOOKS publish'd in each respective Month, but likewise to receive PROPOSALS at large from Gentlemen and Booksellers, for Printing by Subscription, resolving to confine my self to what relates to Matters of Learning only, which I think to be a Province sufficient at one Time, without tacking to it a Parcel of Stories from News Papers, and calling it a Chronicle; which I must confess, I had once a Thought of doing, but laid it aside, as being afraid it wou'd too much clash with my original Design.

I shall likewise take due Care to publish my Account of Books printed in the preceding, within six Days of every succeeding, Month; and in the mean Time, I cannot but return due Thanks to all my Subscribers, for their Generous and Unanimous Resentment of what is so apparently calculated to my Disadvantage; and shall endeavour still to deserve the good Opinion they have hitherto entertain'd of the Performance of their fair, full Character, and with a large Margin. There will be printed at the End, a ſmall Treatiſe, Intitled, The Intereſt of the Princes of the Chriſtian World, very elegantly wrote, and with a great deal of Spirit, which is thought to have been wrote by Davila, becauſe it is ſo full of Political Reflections. Several Perſons have already ſubſcribed. N. B. Whereas many Additions and Interpolations have been made to the two firſt Volumes, both in Engliſh and French, by the Tranſlators and Bookſellers in the Author's Abſence, and without his Privity and Knowledge; he hereby gives Notice, that he'll take all imaginable Care to prevent the like Impoſition in this, and publiſh at the ſame time a few Copies of the former Volumes corrected and cleared from the ſaid Additions and Interpolations.

Obliged Humble Servant,

JOHN WILFORD.

Some who give their Judgments up to Names, having perceiv'd that these Treatises were usher'd into the World anonymous, have begun to think that they were not compiled by a Gentleman of the Profession; in which they greatly betray their want of Skill; none belonging to any Branch of Physick can be deceiv'd in this Point, because every Sentence demonstrates somewhat of Science appertaining to the Principles of the Art, and they are hereby invited to make any Objections against the Sentiments therein contained, which will not be clearly and demonstratively maintained: Therefore such only can have Reason to doubt, who rely upon the Words of other Persons. If the Books are erroneous in any one Point, they deserve the Flames, and ought to be suppress'd; but as they are a compleat Body of Instructions, directing all Mankind how to preserve Health, how to manage Diseases by Kitchen Physick, and a sure and a tolerably full Guide for Travellers in all that befall them, they certainly merit that Praise which is due to them; and that the World may be apprized of the Particulars contained in them, here follows a general View of what they treat of.

PROPOSALS.

A Propoſal for printing an Univerſal Hiſtory, from the earlieſt Account of Time to the preſent.

It hath been juſtly complain'd, that though the World abounds with Books, which paſs for General Hiſtories, a General Hiſtory is a thing ſtill wanting: For either they do not deſcend low enough, which is the Defect of Sir Walter Raleigh's; or if they do, they ſeldom go further than the European Nations, which is the Fault of Dr. Howel's, the moſt general Hiſtory extant in Engliſh; not to mention ſeveral other Imperfections in them, for want of the the Discoveries and Improvements which have been made in History, Chronology, and Geograghy since their Time: And this Complaint having of late encreased, especially since the Establishment of Professorships for Modern History in the Universities, which has brought this Study more in Esteem; a Society of Gentlemen have at last undertaken effectually to remove the Cause, by publishing a History of all Nations whatever, both antient and modern.

In the Execution of this Design, the History of every Nation will be given apart; by which Means the lesser Monarchies and States will be freed from the historical Bondage of the greater, in which they are generally involved by Authors; who treat them with as much Tyranny as their Conquerors, never mentioning them but occasionally: So that they must necessarily want a continued, uniform, and perfect History of their Affairs, which, by this Means, they will receive.

Each particular History will begin from the first Notice to be found of the People, and carried down through the several Revolutions and Changes in their Government and Religion, to their Dissolution, or some remarkable Period, at which it may be thought proper to break off for the present. All their Migrations and Conquests will be related, with an exact Account of the Successions and Reigns of their respective Emperors, Kings, Princes, or other Rulers. Whatever they have render'd themselves famous for, whether Arms, Learning, Inventions, or Trade, shall be taken Notice of; and in short, nothing omitted which may be useful or instructive.

Particular Care will be taken all along to settle the Geography and Chronology, those two Eyes of History. With regard to the first, it is designed to give a succinct, but exact Account of the original County of each Nation, with Maps in proper Places; and according to Herodotus's Rule, to mention the small Cities, as well as the great, which occur in every Author; not forgetting to point out their Situations, where necessary and practicable. As to the Chronology, the Dates of all memorable Facts will be inserted according to the Æra of the Nation whose History is given, and that of CHRIST, reckoning backwards and forwards. In this Part the Undertakers will find themselves obliged to differ from some of our late Chronologers, who have fallen into unaccountable Mistakes about the Beginnings and Periods of ſome of the antient Monarchies, by departing from the Authority of the beſt Hiſtorians, to follow an Hypotheſis of their own. And in order to connect and mix the Hiſtories of the Nations, which are divided in the Work itſelf, compleat Chronological Tables will be added to the End of each Volume.

The publick may be aſſured, that this is to be no Tranſlation from the French, or a Collection from Collections; but the whole will be extracted from the original Authors, which will be conſtantly quoted. In the antient Hiſtory, the Foundation will be the Antients themſelves, and the Moderns will be made uſe of only as Comments upon them: And in the Modern, greater Regard will always be had to an Author who writes the Hiſtory of the Age he lived in, than to one who wrote in the following; and to one who lived near the Times he writes of, than to him who lived later, making an Allowance for the Partiality of Authors, where it may apparently be preſumed. And as the Undertakers will not truſt to what others have done before them, neither will they truſt one Nation for the Hiſtory of another; but will conſtantly have Recourſe to their own Hiſtorians, as beſt qualified to give an Account of their own Affairs: For this Reaſon, the greateſt Part of what relates to Oriental Hiſtory, ſo little known at preſent in Europe, will be extracted immediately from the beſt Oriental Authors, of which our Libraries afford plenty, though hitherto but little uſed; for it ſeems altogether as unreaſonable to take the Hiſtory of the Arabians, Perſians, Turks, &c. from the Greek or other European Authors, as to compile the European Hiſtory out of the Oriental.

It may be proper further to acquaint the Publick, that in this Collection it is not the Undertakers Deſign to preſent the Shadow, and leave the Subſtance unregarded; or to omit the uſeful Part, as ſome of our modern Hiſtorians have done, to introduce long Deſcriptions of Battels and Sieges, made Speeches, Letters, and other Digreſſions, which, though they may be excuſable in particular Hiſtories, ought to be carefully avoided in general ones, where nothing but the Eſſentials ſhould find a Place.

For the ſame Reaſon, the Undertakers will avoid, as much as poſſible, entring into Controverſy, eſpecially about Points which are abſolutely uncertain or undecidable: And will only engage engage that Way on ſome particular Occaſions, and where they can propoſe effectually to clear up a Difficulty to the Reader's Satisfaction. In a word, they will endeavour equally to avoid the Extreams of Brevity and Prolixity: And there will be the more Neceſſity for obſerving this juſt Medium, in order to bring ſuch a vaſt Extent of Matter into moderate Bounds, without injuring any Part of the Hiſtory.

The Publick need not be informed that this Collection will ſave them the Expence of buying Numbers of Volumes, beſides the Difficulty of coming at others, which are only to be found in the Libraries of the Curious, and the Trouble of reading ſuch Multitudes of them when got; for every one muſt conclude as much from the Nature of the Deſign. And to make it ſtill more convenient to every Body, as well as to alleviate the Expence to themſelves, the Bookſellers propoſe to publiſh it by twenty Sheets a Month, till the whole is finiſhed, which it is intended to bring within the Compaſs of four Volumes in Folio, on the ſame Letter and Paper with this Propoſal, which is given as a Specimen. By this Means alſo, the Publick will gradually ſee how the Deſign is executed; and the Bookſellers, who have ſet this Work on foot purely at the Motion of ſeveral Gentlemen of Figure and Learning, deſire the Encouragement of the Publick no longer than the Performance ſhall appear to deſerve it, having an entire Confidence in the Gentlemen concerned, to whom they leave the whole Conduct and Management of it.

It is propoſed not to publiſh the firſt Number till the firſt Day of February next, that ſo, by having a ſufficient Quantity of Sheets advance, the publick may never be in Danger of being diſappointed of their monthly Quota, or the Undertakers under a Neceſſity of hurrying on the Work, in order to keep up with the Preſs. In the mean time, it is hoped thoſe Gentlemen who deſire to ſee ſuch a Work as this well executed, and have made any Remarks which may tend either to explain a Doubt, clear up a Difficulty, diſcover an Error, or give new Light into any Point of Hiſtory, Chronology, or Geography, will be ſuch Friends to the Deſign as to communicate them to the Undertakers (directed for J. CROKATT, as underneath) of which publick Acknowledgment ſhall be made; and that they will give all Encouragement to a Work of Use, which is the Growth of their own Country.

To be satisfied how far this Collection will exceed any Thing that hath hitherto appeared, the Readers need only compare the Contents of any other Work of this Kind with a compleat Plan of the Design, which will be inserted in the next Catalogue.

The Price of every Twenty Sheets will be Three Shillings and Six Pence, which, it is hoped, will not be thought unreasonable, considering the great Labour and Expence which will be inevitable in so extensive an Undertaking.

The Booksellers, ROBERT GOSLING, B. MOTTE, J. CROKATT, near St. Dunstan's Church in Fleet-street; S. BIRT in Ave-Mary-Lane; J. BATLEY in Pater-noster-Row; T. ASTLEY in St. Paul's Church-yard; G. STRAHAN and E. SYMON against the Royal Exchange in Cornhill.

N. B. Those Gentlemen who intend to be Encouragers of this Undertaking, are desired immediately to transmit their Names and Place of Abode to J. CROKATT.
